From Thursday July 8. to Monday July 12. 1680.

Madrid, June 27.

THe King, as we are told, has resolved not to Quit the Title of Duke of Burgundy, and yesterday two Expresses were sent from hence, the one with Letters to the Duke de Villa Hermosa, Governor of the Spanish Netherlands, and the other to the Kings Minister in England. The Marquis de Grana, Ambassador from the Emperor, has not yet made his publick Entry, but will now very suddainly. The Plague begins to break out in Andaluzia, and all persons that come from thence, are obliged to make a Quarantine. The last week the Court was entertained with a Bull Feast, in which, near 20 persons were wounded, and one killed. On Sunday next the Inquisition will pronounce Sentence against above 200 Jews and others, now in prison, of which it's expected the greatest part will be condemned to be burnt. It is certain that the Prince of Parma is declared Governor of the Spanish Netherlands, and that the Count de Melgar is continued in the Government of Milan.

Milan, June 26. These parts are at present in great peace and quietness, and wholly freed of the apprehensions they were some time since in, of the designs of the French: however, our Governor continues, what in him lies, to provide against the worst, by putting all places that are of any importance, into a posture of Defence. Besides the Spanish Soldiers that lately arrived at Final, 500 more are daily expected there.

Venice, June 29. The last week we had news from Constantinople, which gave an account, that the Grand Signior intended to pass this Winter at Belgrade, and to goe and Command his Armies in person the next Spring; that according to all appearance, this year would pass without any great action on the part of the Turks, who would act only Defensively; That on the other side, the Moscovites did Arm very vigorously; and that they had obtained a great Victory over the Tartars. On Thursday last Signior Morosini, who is lately returned from his Embassy at Constantinople, made his publick Entry, and took possession of the Dignity of Procurator of St. Mark, which has been conferred upon him.

Legorn, July 2. The Six Algerines (we formerly gave you an account of) continue on this Coast; they have lately taken above 100 persons belonging to Corsica

Prague June 29. The Plague Increases daily in this City, to the interruption of all Commerce; the Shops are shut up, and all Processions and publique Meetings are forbid; Mass is said only once a day, at Ten a clock, and if the Plague increases, the Churches will be quite shut up. The Emperor is with a very small Court at Pardubits, from whence he will remove to Snitz in the Upper Austria, and from thence return to Vienna, where the necessary preparations are making for the Reception of the Court.

Francfort, July 7. The States of the Empire Assembled at Ratisbonne, are now debating what Resolutions to take, upon the several Complaints that have been made to them by the Princes of the Empire, concerning the proceedings of the French; which its not to be doubted, would be more vigorous, were things in a better posture, than they are now like to be. The Plague begins to be violent at Prague, and 7 or 800 dye of it in a week. There has been a great mutiny in the Regiment of Dunewaldt in Hungary, and several of the most guilty, have been executed.

Strasburg, July 8. Since the taking the Castle of Falkenburg (the Garrison whereof consisting in 40 Men, is come to Manheim) the French have sent their Cannon for Battery, and their Mortar-pieces back to Brisack; their Infantry is likwise marched that way, but the Cavalry continues at Landaw, and will do so till the middle of the next month. The French Troops that lye on the Saar, are, as we are told, to march from thence towards the Meuse; and the Baron de Montlar is going to the Franche Comte, to take a Review of the Cavalry there, Hamburg, July 12. The King of Denmark is expected at Gluckstadt on the 16 Instant in his return to Copenhagen; before his departure from Oldenburg, where he is at present: the Duke of Zell will, as is said, give his Majesty a visit, to discourse with him concerning the Moneys he demands from the Countrey of Embden, for Winter Quarters, and to desire his Majesty to depart from that pretention, for that he, the Duke of Zell, and the other Princes of Lunenburg are obliged to protect the said Countrey of Embden. On Friday last the Margrave of Baden arrived in this City from the Elector of Brandenburgs Court; he is here Incognito, and is going to Zell to confer with the Princes of Lunenburg, concerning the present state of the Empire. The Letters from Dresden and Leipzick will not own that the Plague is there.

Cologne, July 2. The Governor of the Castle of Falkenburg is very much blamed, for having no better defended a place, which by its Scituation was made so strong, and he will hardly be able to free himself from a suspition, that he was influenced upon by the promises of the Baron de Montlar. The French Troops have again quitted the Palatinate, and the Elector Palatine has caused Oggersheim to be demolished, lest the French might be invited to post some of their Troops there.

Amsterdam, July 16. The Lading of the East India Ships (of whose arrival we told you in our last,) is valued at 300 000 pound sterling, besides three more that are expected. The Heer Stirenberg, Ambassador from this State to France, will begin his journey in few days.
